

ASPCA[®] ANIMAL POISON CONTROL

We've been leaders in animal toxicology since 1978, boasting the world's largest team of board-certified toxicologists. With more than 200 staff members and nearly 5 million completed cases, we're available 24/7 to provide support whenever your pet needs it. Let's face it, pets don't stick to a convenient schedule.

WHY DOES MY VET NEED TO CALL THE ASPCA?

Your veterinarian may recommend consulting with toxicology specialists at our Animal Poison Control Center, much like your primary care physician will refer you to a cardiologist for a heart condition. Our expertise ensures that your pet promptly receives exceptional care tailored to your pet's needs in cases involving toxic substances.

✓ Seamless Collaboration

We work closely with your vet to tailor your pet's treatment plan around the specific details of their exposure. A one-time fee covers unlimited consultations per case. Together, we get pets back to doing what they love.

✓ Expedited Care

By consulting with us, your vet can skip unnecessary tests and quickly receive precise treatment recommendations, ensuring that your pet is given lifesaving care as soon as possible.

✓ Cost Savings

Our team can save you money. We'll guide you through at-home treatment for certain exposures and streamline veterinary procedures, minimizing unnecessary tests and time at the clinic. For added financial relief, most pet insurance companies cover our consultation fees.

✓ Peace of Mind

Our service leaves you confident that your pet is receiving the best care possible.
